"This is an extraordinary book.

That the author was animated by a deeper emotion than that of the production of a clever and somewhat surprising noved which should make a great sensation, we are perfectly satisfied.

A graceful langu, and even a high imaginative power, are mapparingly exercised throughout "—Douglass Jerrold's Weekly News.

"Talent of a high order 1 come on every page."

(London New Monthly Magazine "Besides the admirable sketches of society, the story of 'Alban Atherton' has a great purpose."—Lendon New Monthly.

"The young lady characters in 'Alban' are just such giels as we have all known and some of us perhaps have loved."—Whig Review. have all known and some of us perhaps have loved. "—Whig Recies."

"'The Forest' is one of the fluest pictures ever painted of an outdoor life in the wild regions of this State; and we speak with a vivid memory of all that Cooper and Hoffman have done. Its delineations of individual character are hardly less admirable."

[N. Y. Courier and Enquirer.

"Woods, lakes, and water-falls, the forest clearing, and the mountain wilderness attract Mr. Hontington with the freshness and variety of a new inspiration."—N. Y. Literary World.

"The descriptive powers evinced in 'The Forest' are extraordinary."—N. Y. Ecangetist. ry."—N. Y. Kempelist.

"The finest portions of the work are the descriptions of hunting and of the grand scenery of the North. Here the author's thought flows in native channels, and the beautiful pictures of the wild woods and lakes, and the myrked phases of nature in forces, stream, and mountain, are painted with masterly and poetic skill."

[Protestant Churckman.]

"The author's power of description is truly extraordinary; the pen-paintings are as exquisite in their kind as the colored landscapes of the masters. You see that the man has drouk in art from his earliest life, and has the artist's double gening appreciation, and reproduction. Whatever may be the subject, it is placed before us with a vivid, a liv-ing beauty, equalled by no American writer we know."

[Denaid MacLood in the N. Y. Freeman's Journal.

"That Mr. Huntington has such a faculty and affis may be seen by any one who will read ten pages of 'The Forest.' The sports, the adventures of an Indian hunting-ground, are put before the reader's mind with the sharp outlines, the hunner, and the hreadth of real life. The incidents of the journey through the wilderness, the moral interest growing up like flowers out of the commonest material facts, are charmingly described." London Athenaum.

charminely described." London Athenaum.

"We venture to say that no reader, great or small, who takes up this book (The Pretty Plate') will lay it down unfinished. It tolls the story of a story told to half a down children in a fire-lip parker. Their comments point in a few words the character of those who make these with such graphic power that we see the listeners before us. In this respect the book is quite remarkable. We have not met with one in which javenile character was so discriminated and portrayed."
